Republic of Sierra Leone

Ward Boundary Delimitation Report

Volume 3

August, 2017

Foreword

The National Electoral Commission (NEC) is submitting this report on the delimitation of constituency and ward boundaries in adherence to its constitutional mandate to delimit electoral constituency and ward boundaries, to be done “not less than five years and not more than seven years”; and complying with the timeline as stipulated in the NEC Electoral Calendar (2015-2019).

The report is subject to Parliamentary approval, as enshrined in the 1991 Constitution of Sierra Leone (Act No 6 of 1991); which inter alia states delimitation of electoral boundaries to be done by NEC, while Section 38 (1) empowers the Commission to divide the country into constituencies for the purpose of electing Members of Parliament (MPs) using Single Member First- Past –the Post (FPTP) system. The Local Government Act of 2004, Part 1 –preliminary, assigns the task of drawing wards to NEC; while the Public Elections Act, 2012 (Section 14, sub-sections 1 &2) forms the legal basis for the allocation of council seats and delimitation of wards in Sierra Leone.

The Commission appreciates the level of technical assistance, collaboration and cooperation it received from Statistics Sierra Leone (SSL), the Boundary Delimitation Technical Committee (BDTC), the Boundary Delimitation Monitoring Committee (BDMC), donor partners, line Ministries, Departments and Agencies and other key actors in the boundary delimitation exercise.

The hiring of a Consultant, Dr Lisa Handley, an internationally renowned Boundary delimitation expert, added credence and credibility to the process as she provided professional advice which assisted in maintaining international standards and best practices.

NEC is equally mindful of the support it received from stakeholders, including Political Parties, Paramount Chiefs and Members of Parliament, in the sixteen electoral districts while sensitization and public consultations were done at national and districts level on the boundary delimitation process. The discussions were frank and participatory.

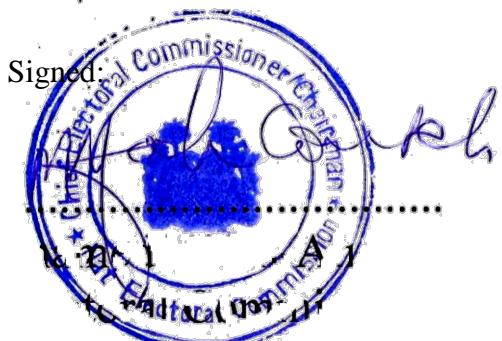

In a bid to maintain standards and comply with its legal mandate, the Commission ensured greater consultations with political parties, stakeholders, representatives from district councils and municipalities, whose contributions were laudable in the finalization of this report.

The conduct of the boundary delimitation nationwide exercise had its challenges. Nevertheless, consensus was reached in the final analysis in the sixteen districts where electoral boundaries delimitation, information sharing, consultations and validations were held. This exhibits the spirit of mutual consent and acceptability of a process which serves as a gateway to representativeness in the country’s democratic dispensation.

The Commission is of the view that the numerous public consultations, backed with the expertise of its technical staff and staff of SSL, use of effective GIS software and database added credence to the accuracy and credibility of the Boundary Delimitation of 2016. This by extension is indicative that the boundaries produced have been well defined and mapped efficiently and accurately, taking in to consideration the valuable inputs of the stakeholders engaged in the process.

The Commission shall continue in its stride to maintain professional standards and best practices in the conduct of electoral processes leading to the conduct of credible and transparent elections.

Together, we shall remain committed to adhering to the guiding principles and constitutional mandate of the Commission for the sustainable growth, economic development, democracy and good governance.

Executive Summary

This report explains how the National Electoral Commission has reviewed and revised boundaries for constituencies and wards in Sierra Leone. It documents the application of the legal and operational frameworks on the boundary delimitation process across 16 electoral districts and 22 local council localities in Sierra Leone.

The application of the legal framework on the conduct of boundary delimitation for constituencies and wards referenced the:

1. The Constitution of Sierra Leone, 1991; Section 38.
2. The Constitutional Instrument (Amendment) No. 2 of 2008, The Wards (Boundary Delimitation) Regulations, 2008.
3. The Public Elections Act, 2012; Section 14.
4. The Local Govt (Amendment) Act 2004
5. The Provinces (Amendment) Act 2017
6. Eight Establishment Orders 2017

The application of the operational framework on the conduct of boundary delimitation for constituencies and wards centered on:

1. Providing periodic updates on the review process to national stakeholders including; the Government of Sierra Leone, House of Parliament, political parties, international development partners, civil society organizations, the media and the National and District Boundary Delimitation Monitoring Committees
2. Collaboration with Statistics Sierra Leone for technical and operational assistance in:
  - a. Providing population statistics.
  - b. Drawing draft boundaries for constituencies and wards using Geographic Information System technology.
  - c. Verifying and describing draft boundaries for constituencies and wards.
3. District-level consultations with stakeholders on:
  - a. National tables on allocation of seats to Parliament and local councils
  - b. Draft boundaries for constituencies and wards.
4. District-level validations by stakeholders of final draft boundaries for constituencies and wards.

The current numbers of constituencies (112) and wards (394) were enacted based on the boundary delimitation processes done in 2006 and 2008 respectively.

The revised numbers of constituencies (132) and wards (446) have resulted from the 2017 boundary delimitation process due to the following factors:

1. The House of Parliament, on 10th May 2016, conveyed the prescription of ordinary seats to be 132 in respect of Ordinary Members of Parliament.

2. The number of multi-member ward localities decreased from five (5) localities in 2008 to four (4) localities 2017. The reduction of the number of multi-member ward localities increased the total number of wards from 394 wards in 2008 to 446 wards in 2017.
